New Legislation

The Domestic Abuse Act 2021

Link: Domestic Abuse Act

The Domestic Abuse Act became law in April 2021 and now includes a legal definition of domestic abuse.

- the definition incorporates abuse beyond physical violence, such as emotional, coercive or controlling behaviour, and economic abuse.
- to fall within the definition, both victim and perpetrator must be “personally connected”.
- the definition ensures that different types of relationships are captured, including ex-partners and family members.
- it is gender neutral to ensure that all victims and all types of domestic abuse are adequately captured, and no victim is excluded from protection or access to services.
- it does not extend to paid and unpaid carers, unless they are also personally connected, such as a family member.
- it defines domestic abuse as occurring where the victim and perpetrator are aged over 16; for a victim under 16, it would be dealt with as child abuse rather than domestic abuse.

Other inclusions:

- the Act clearly recognises children as victims if they see, hear or experience the effects of abuse.
- it extends the controlling or coercive behaviour offence to cover post-separation abuse.
- it includes a new offence of non-fatal strangulation/suffocation.
- it extends another offence to include the threat to disclose intimate images (porn revenge).
- it clarifies the law further in order to clamp down on claims of “rough sex gone wrong” where death or serious injury have occurred.

- it puts the domestic violence disclosure scheme, commonly known as ‘Clare’s Law’, on a statutory footing.
- domestic abuse protection orders (DAPOs) replace and reinforce previous orders, such as domestic violence protection orders (DVPO’s) and non-molestation orders.
- it places a duty on local authorities in England to provide accommodation-based support to victims of domestic abuse and their children, in refuges or other safe accommodation.
- it provides that all eligible homeless victims automatically have ‘priority need’ for assistance.
- it prevents perpetrators of abuse from cross-examining their victims in person in the civil and family courts in England and Wales.
- it creates a statutory presumption that victims are eligible for special measures in the criminal, civil and family courts.
- it clarifies the circumstances in which a court may make a barring order under section 91(14) of the Children Act 1989 to prevent family proceedings that can further traumatise victims.
- it prohibits GPs and other health professionals in general practice from charging a victim of domestic abuse for a letter to support an application for legal aid.
- it provides for a statutory code of practice relating to the processing of domestic abuse data for immigration purposes.

Examples of coercive control in the context of faith/religion

In addition to coercive control taking place in intimate or family relationships, it could also take place in someone's wider faith community, both by other members of their faith community, by faith leaders or by others representing faith institutions. This may include, but is not limited to:

- being prevented from visiting one's place of worship or being pressured to do so against one's will.
- being prevented from praying or worshipping or being pressured or coerced to do so a certain number of times per day/week.
- being told that your God(s) hate you.

- being pressured to have sex, or to carry out particular sexual acts, which the partner did not want to do, by being told that they must comply in order to adequately practice their faith.
- using a certain interpretation of sacred texts to dictate, implicitly or explicitly, what can be worn or eaten, or where the partner may go or do.
- using sacred texts to pressure forgiveness of abuse, or to 'submit to your husband' and therefore to accept or allow certain behaviours.
- using religious texts to justify abusive or hurtful behaviour.
- using religious teachings to prevent someone leaving or separating from an abuser.
- a spouse refusing to grant a religious divorce.
- a partner forcing children to be raised in a faith the other doesn't agree to.
- a spouse threatening to marry another wife/husband.

New/updated Guidance

Child Sexual Abuse in Football

In March this year the Football Association published findings from an independent review by Clive Sheldon QC into allegations of sexual abuse in football in England during the period 1970 to 2005.

The findings echo those found in other reviews, including those of religious organisations, including that the FA took too long to act and that safeguarding was not an issue taken seriously enough.

The recommendations are very similar too, and include:

- safeguarding training
- safeguarding standards
- safer recruitment processes including DBS
- support for survivors

Soon after this report was published the BBC showed a three-part documentary examining historic child abuse in youth football across England between the 1970s and the 1990s. This was very harrowing viewing indeed and reminds us that safeguarding is the responsibility of each and every one of us.

Disclosure and Barring Services \(DBS\) Checks for Faith Centres - Strengthening Faith Institutions \(SFI\) \(sfitogether.org\)

The Disclosure and Barring Service (DBS) recently worked with Strengthening Faith Institutions (SFI) and the Charity Commission to support faith organisations, to produce guidance on DBS checks and eligibility which is tailored to different faiths.

DBS checks for working with children in places of worship (changes)

Link:

DBS checks for working with children in places of worship \(changes\)

Published Feb 2021

This guidance on the GOV.UK website highlights the rules for DBS checks for working with children in places of worship was issued on 19 Feb 2021.

The main activities that are likely to occur in faith settings which will make a role eligible for a DBS check when working with children are:

- teaching, training or instructing children
- care of children
- providing advice and guidance wholly or mainly to children in relation to their emotional, physical or educational wellbeing e.g. advice on staying healthy while fasting, educational advice when considering a life of faith or emotional guidance when going through difficult times in life such as bereavement (added as regulated activity)
- driving children
- day-to-day management of people undertaking these activities

Anyone undertaking these activities on more than 3 days in any 30-day period will be eligible for an Enhanced DBS check with a check of the Children's Barred List.

Anyone undertaking these activities overnight between 2am and 6am with contact with the children would also be eligible for an Enhanced DBS check with a check of the Children's Barred List. If someone does these activities but less often they will be eligible for an Enhanced DBS check without the Children's Barred List check.

Ofcom, April 2021

Ofcom has published a report looking at the media use and attitudes of children and young people aged 5-15.

Findings show that in 2020:

- nearly all children aged 5-15 went online
- just over half of 12-15s have had some form of negative online experience, most commonly being contacted by someone they did not know who wanted to be their friend
- awareness of reporting functions was high (70% of children aged 12-15), but only 14% of 12-15s have ever reported content.

Link:

My Story Matters - Understanding young people's perceptions of abuse in their romantic relationships.pdf \(safelives.org.uk\)

The report explores young people's perceptions of abuse in their romantic relationship.

The findings include:

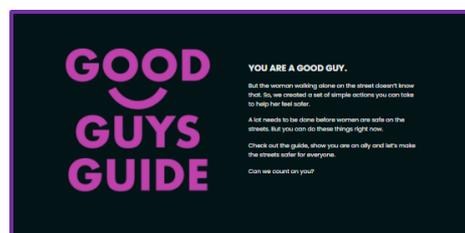

- using language that resonates with young people is critical
- young people are more inclined to use language such as “toxic” or “manipulative” or “controlling” to describe a relationship than anything like “domestic abuse” or “intimate partner violence” which is something they perceive as happening to older people and not them
- young people want support in understanding where the line is between healthy and unhealthy relationships in their peer relationships
- friends and family were young people's main sources of support followed by teachers and youth

Resource developed by the charity Solace and M&C Saatchi

2021

Link:

home - Good Guys Guide

Solace says that the Good Guys Guide:

“seeks to help men realise that even “good guys” can be perceived as a threat, and that they have a role to play in helping women feel more comfortable when out on the streets.”

The guide offers a set of seven quick and easy to follow rules that men can adopt when out and about in order to help women feel safe, acknowledging that it's not a woman's responsibility to “take precautions to avoid being harassed”.

Although not everyone may agree with all the points it is an innovative and positive response to the conversations about gender-based violence that we within the Church can be having with our young men.

Safeguarding Standing Orders Simplified

Link: Safeguarding Standing Orders Simplified \(methodist.org.uk\)

For some people the style in which the Standing Orders of the Methodist Church are written can make them difficult to understand.

Six leaflets that seek to provide a simpler explanation of the standing orders relating to safeguarding are now available for downloading or printing.

These leaflets do not change the standing orders but have used simpler language to explain key areas of the Church's safeguarding legislation.

They are intended to be given to anyone who becomes involved in a safeguarding matter and provide an explanation of how the safeguarding process works in the Methodist Church.

The leaflets are:

- Safeguarding Standing Orders – A Simplified Guide
- Safeguarding Standing Orders - The Safeguarding Committee
- Safeguarding Standing Orders - The Church and Public Protection
- Safeguarding Standing Orders - Duty to Obtain Disclosures
- Safeguarding Standing Orders - Safeguarding and Suspensions
- Safeguarding Standing Orders - Safeguarding and the Rehabilitation of Offenders Act
